emailed to Jack Anderson (1/19/26) (asked him to forward it to rest of planning commission)

To: Town of Greenville Planning Commission regarding the proposed Concept Plan near School Road & Julius Drive

From: Steve & Jane Gauger, W7227 Moonlight Drive

We moved to Greenville in 1973, moving our mobile home from Minnesota to the Greenville mobile home park. We liked Immanuel Lutheran church and the area, so we had a small home built on Ellen Lane, where we lived 37 years. Realizing our home would not fit our needs as we aged, we built a retirement home in 2011 in Moonlight Meadows.

RE: Wetlands/Water Drainage

We were reluctant to build a home in Moonlight Meadows because of the standing water in the fields that we saw for 37 years when we drove up and down Julius to go to church. But we were told that the field south of Moonlight Meadows was tilled now and had seen a reduction of water in that field, so we built. 15 years later depending on the snow fall and spring rains, the "ponds" are still there. Snow Geese make use of these ponds as they migrate in the spring.

As we look at old and new maps of this area, there are obvious creeks that were and are still running in this area. We may not be able to "see" much of them anymore, but the water is still there and has to drain "somewhere."

At the end of the Planning Commission meeting January 12th, it was said that there would be a wetland/water runoff/drainage study before the proposed Concept Plan near School Road & Julius Drive is approved. We thank you for this decision. Will the results of this study be posted on the town's website?

RE: Roads & Traffic Safety

The School and Julius intersection is in the center of Greenville.

The 1889 map of Greenville displays the original Town Hall next to the "Greenville Ger Luth Ch & Cem" on the corner of School and Julius. Julius was also on the "Yellowstone Trail" that ran through Wisconsin. These are old roadways.

Currently, more traffic than the current roads can safely manage is occurring in this area due to the growth in the subdivisions north, east and west, the Y, and Immanuel Lutheran Church and School. School Road is very narrow and needs to be widened; turn lanes should be added for safety. The infrastructure for these and other roads should be designed for expected but yet unknown future growth.

At the end of the Planning Commission meeting January 12th, it was said that there would be a traffic study before the proposed Concept Plan near School Road & Julius Drive is approved. We thank you for this decision. Will the results of this study be posted on the town's website?

RE: 55+ Housing

At our age, 78, we are in this group. We did build a zero-step entry home, with wide doorways and everything we need is on the main floor. But we still need to maintain the landscaping and shovel the snow. We still need to drive to appointments, church and social functions to be with people. And being with people is so important as we age.

Housing for 55+ is not just smaller homes grouped together. It should be designed as a small community with a type of HOA to care for the outside of the homes. This age group wants a central park-like gathering place and a "community" building for socialization. Placing this small community in a quiet part of the subdivision would be preferred (not near a busy intersection).

One of the town commission members stated she would like citizen input. Could a meeting notice be posted for the Greenville citizens to address this issue?

In conclusion,

The Town of Greenville has written strategic planning directives. They are great! We agree with all of them. Your number 1 directive is to "Improve and Maintain Public Infrastructure."

After the wetland/water and road/traffic studies are completed, the developer will have solid information to create a concept plan and the town planning commission will have solid information to approve or disapprove the subdivision.

Thank you for the time and effort you put into managing Greenville's growing pains.
